London Gazette 24.1.1919 p.1222; 12.3.1919 p.3387; 2.12.1919 p.14872		On 14th October, 1918, during an attack on Gheluwe, he became detached from his company and found himself with two other men with another company. In attacking Uniform farm, which was strongly held with machine guns, trench mortars, and field guns, he showed great skill and daring in working forward with a Lewis gun and opening ont he battery and thereby enabling the company to advance and capture the farm and guns complete. On 16th October he went out in front under heavy fire and helped back a badly wounded man to safety. He set a fine example of courage and devotion to duty.

Distinguished Conduct Medal	FH 26.7.1919 p.3* & 5a		Near Jancourt, in the Hindenburg Line, near St Quentin, he behaved himself in a gallant manner between 29th September and 5th October, 1918. When the enemy attacked on 30th September, and his platoon officer had been killed, Sgt Reid took command, and rallied the men at a time when the situation was extremely critical. By fearlessly exposing himself at such a moment and by the personal encouragement he gave, his men held on, though suffering heavy casualties. On October 1 he again led his platoon with great gallantry and ability, and though badly gassed, refused to report sick until his battalion was relieved on 5th October.

"On August 31st 1918, during the operations on Mont St Quentin, NE of Peroune, a machine gun post was holding up the advance of his company. This Nco instructed his section to maintain a fire on the post, while he quickly worked round the flank to within bombing distance of the post, which he successfully bombed, thus allowing the advance to continue without further casualties from this source. Later on a sniper was doing damage. This NCO located him, rushed the position alone, and killed him. He then brought up the rest of the section, and gained entrance to two dugouts, capturing 20 prisoners."

Distinguished Conduct Medal	London Gazette 16 January 1919 p.866		For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on 31st August, 1918, at Mont St Quentin, when the advance of his company was held up by a machine-gun post. Instructing his section to keep up a frontal fire on the post, he worked round the flank to within bombing distance, and successfully silenced it. Later on, he rushed and killed a sniper, and bringing up the rest of his section, seized the entrance to two dugouts, capturing twenty prisoners.
