"On August 3rd 1917, in front of Ypres, this NCO was in charge of a Divisional Signal Office when it was completely cut off by heavy shell fire. He showed the greatest initiative by selecting and re-laying his circuits by the only route at the time through which cables could be possibly laid, and thus re-establishing communication. This gallant NCO's example, initiative, and energy were largely responsible for the maintenance of communications from August 3rd to August 7th - a very trying and difficult time - a time when his linesmen were worn out and were only kept going by their great sense of duty, which he so largely fostered by his own fine example." S01715	YOUNG	William		250784	Pte	Royal Scots						Bo'ness		Cited May 1918.	Distinguished Conduct Medal	London Gazette 1.5.1918 p.5321		For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He displayed the utmost gallantry in action, when single handed, he rushed a hostile machine gun, bayoneted one off the team, routed the remainder, and then put the gun out of action; there being a danger of an immediate counter-attack by the enemy. His courage, dash and initiative cannot be too highly praised.
